

THE JOB: JUNIOR DEVELOPER

Time to move past software development as a hobby? We are looking for who wants to become a full stack developer when they grow up.

- Do you have a love of software development, but haven't been able to break into the field because you lack "experience"?
- Have you talked to other firms that want you to sit on a help desk because you're "entry level"?
- Do you have a passionate belief that you could be a killer software developer if you just had the right opportunity.

If you've downloaded SDKs and tried to make a mobile app, or if you've taught yourself some Java or C#, we want to talk to you. Yesterday.

This is a full-time position based in Dublin, OH.

THE PERKS

- A flexible vacation policy.
- Flex hours. Wanna work four 10s? Sure.
- On site client embeds.
- No drama, stable company.
- We run multiple projects for clients so when you're done you get to work on something new.
- Average developer tenure – six years. Longest tenure – 17 years. Ask us why.

THE NEXT STEP

Send your resume in PDF format, along with salary requirements and a link to a GitHub, BitBucket, or other developer account/profile if you have one.
